CHERRY IS A SCENE OF SORROW—WOMEN ARE CRYING, "OPEN THE SHAFT"

But Smoke Continues to Pour Out of the Opening and the Shaft Cannot Be Opened—Mine a Charnel House.

Sherry, Ill., Nov. 17.—An explosion today threatens the St. Paul coal mine in which 300 victims of last Saturday's disaster are still buried. The burning of the coal is one cause, and the action of the fire and water is another. Should gas form in large quantities and explode, the lives of the men at the top of the shaft would be in danger. In an effort to rid the mine of this gas, the shaft will be opened today, according to A. R. Newman, and the big fan started. Upon the success of this action will depend the immediate plans of the men trying to bring the interior fire under control and effect an entrance.

Early today the engine pumping water into the hoisting shaft was stopped. The water evidently was failing to reach the flames, since the fire is fiercest in the galleries and the water descends beyond it to the bottom of the shaft. The water has been forced to the bottom in quantities sufficient to fill the "sump" or drainage basin and overflow the lower galleries. It is possible that the fire pumps will resume later in the day. The fire is now hotter than it has been at any time.

The inquest over the rescuers who perished Saturday was not resumed today.

Threats have been made against Rosenjack, the cager, who is said to have deserted his post on the day of the disaster, and his testimony may bring upon him violence at the hands of those who have held him responsible for the failure to bring at least some of the miners to the surface.

Captain Hall, in command of the militia now here, found no evidence of trouble early today.

"I can't see any need for troops here," he said.

The soldiers were scattered about the mine and their appearance caused no demonstration from the miners.

During the night tons of water were forced down the burning mine through the hoist shaft. Fire Chief Horan and Captain Kenney, with engine No. 49 and a squad of Chicago firemen, are in charge of this work.

The thoroughness of the persons directing the relief will make physical hardship and suffering improbable. If sufficient funds are received, a card index system is employed by S. C. Kingsley superintendent of the United Charities of Chicago, and E. P. Bicknell, director of the National Red Cross.

Bishop Michael Dunne, of the Roman Catholic diocese of Peoria; Father Skulik of La Salle and forty Sisters of Charity will be among the persons trying to give comfort today.

The temperature in the main shaft of the mine was taken this morning by George F. Rice, of the United States geological survey. A few feet from the top the thermometer recorded 115 degrees Fahrenheit. This was far in excess of the favorable than last night when the state authorities determined to open the mine if it possibly could be done with safety.

After making the test, President Harding, Sheriff Shoglund, State Attorney Eckhart, and A. R. Newman went into conference to consider what could be done.

During the taking of the test, the appeals from the women of Cherry for the shaft to be opened forced the officials to turn their heads. With soldiers standing by, one woman rushed up on the sand-covered top of the shaft and threw herself on the earth, sobbing:

"Open the shaft; open the shaft." Her cries and hysterical efforts to resist the attempts of the men to take her away attracted attention all over the mine enclosure.

"Open the shaft; open the shaft," she repeated. "My father was down in a mine a week and he came out alive and I know my husband and brother are no dead."

This is typical of the feeling at Cherry today. The authorities, realizing it, will do all in their power to open the mine.

THREATENED WITH FAMINE.

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 17.—A famine is threatened in Cherry not only for the destitute survivors of the mine disaster, but also for the hundreds of outsiders who are here. The one small hotel of the little mining town has had such a rush of business that it has bought out the food supply of the local stores and then has been unable to get enough for its needs.

About 100 visitors to Cherry are being furnished meals in a dining car brought by the St. Paul railroad. These visitors, who include company officials, state and government mining experts, physicians, nurses, relief workers and newspapermen, have sleeping quarters in three sleeping cars which stand on a sidetrack near the mines.

Every night since the disaster a score of outsiders have slept on hard floors in the hotel, the railroad station and stores, the hotel accommodations being entirely inadequate.

The situation will be further complicated by the arrival of troops. The railroad company has sent in a requisition for four additional sleeping cars for the soldiers and extra dining cars will also be sidetracked in the town.

COOLING THE MINE.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Fire Marshal Horan of this city, who is at Cherry, telephoned his office today as follows:

"The mine will be unsealed this morning. We have been pouring water into the shaft through a small opening in order to cool the sides sufficiently to allow rescuers to enter. Smoke is still issuing from the mine, but the fire probably will be extinguished this morning."

He said he probably would return to Chicago today, leaving one company of fire fighters with an engine at the mine.

SITUATION SERIOUS.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The American National Red Cross headquarters in this city today received the following telegram from National Director Ernest P. Bicknell, at Cherry, Ill.:

"Permanent representative relief committee with myself chairman. The governor issued appeal today declaring that contributing to the disaster. We have a long, hard task ahead. The situation here is most serious."

Policeman Desmond happened to be passing the house while Mrs. Maher and her daughter were discussing the situation. He said:

"The young woman begged and begged to come home, crying all the while. The mother was so affected that she cried and talked and clung swaying to her daughter. She said it was not a matter of love but of life, as the son would not allow his sister to come home. Just then the son came out of the house. The mother and sister both asked him again if he would not let the girl return. I joined in with them. He knelt and cried. Walter, please let me come home; I've got to come home." He turned away and would not take her hand and said: "I am through with you."

The girl walked down the street and when she saw a car coming she ran to the track. I then realized her intention, but I was too late. She leaped forward and the car crushed her."

DOLLY DIMPLES AT THE DANCE

Young Lady Was Tempted to Enjoy the Whole Evening Dancing—She Describes the Dress of Some of Those Present—Tomorrow the Famous Missing Dolly Will Appear on the Stage of the Orpheum Theater.

Today, between 4:30 and 6:30, Dolly Dimples will be found at the following places: AT KUHN'S MODERN CLOTHES SHOP she will gaze at her photograph; at CULLEY'S DRUG STORE she will probably be found at the soda fountain; and she will take dinner at the FALSTAFF CAFE.

WITHOUT DISGUISE.

Since my stay here in Ogden I have come to the conclusion that I will never be captured unless the public of this city has seen me face to face. I, therefore, have made arrangements with the management of the Orpheum Theater to let me appear on the stage tomorrow night where I will address the audience. I will use no disguise but simply be my own self.

I expect to see all Ogden there, as I wish to be captured as soon as possible, after making my appearance. I will tell you all why you have failed to effect my capture.

The reward will be called off tomorrow night, from 6:30 to 10:30. Promptly at the stroke of 10:30 the reward goes into effect again. After my engagement at the Orpheum I will make a quick change and appear in full disguise at the Congress Dancing Academy. This will be the best chance that has yet been offered to effect my capture, and I hope that some one will be shrewd enough to detect me.

(By Dolly Dimples.)

Last night I safely accomplished what would seem almost the impossible. I entered the Royal Dancing academy and eluded capture. Had I known how easy it would be, I would have gone early and spent the whole evening dancing. As it was, I waited until 10:30 before entering.

Dear me! It was so easy. Why, I did not notice a single copy of the Standard.

The Royal Dancing academy is a splendid hall, with such a dandy floor that one would forgive one's grand mother for desiring to dance on it. It is a cute, cosy place, prettily decorated, and with many thoughtful conveniences for its patrons. There is a luxurious little ladies' dressing room, and to the right and left opposite each other are two of the dearest little cosy corners. I noticed a refreshment stand at the northeast corner, where I suppose punch is served. But the orchestra! The music was just fine. The musicians were in the balcony, and the strains of music seemed to just float about one. As it was so very late I did not remain long, though the lovely music and the excellent floor were a great temptation.

There was a very sweet little lady at the door taking tickets. She wore a long light gray coat and a fur about her neck. Although I remained such a short time, I noticed a great many things. I remarked what a nice gentleman the floor manager is. He is short and heavy set, wearing a brown suit.

The crowd was composed of very nice, refined appearing young folks, and everybody seemed to be having a dandy time.

I inquired the name of a very charming little lady present, who on account of her cheeriness, particularly impressed me, and learned that she was a Mrs. Potter.

A young man, a very clever dancer and of very nice looking, seemed very popular. He was of about medium height and very dark. His name, I was told, was George Veasey.

A charming chap, who was enjoying himself very much, was Mr. Smalley. At the door was the Uthman candy man selling his wares.

Many looked at me, but didn't seem to specially notice me. When I came out of the ladies' dressing room, I stood for a minute or so near the stove.

A dance at the Royal academy offers a very enjoyable evening's entertainment, and it is deservedly popular.

NO PINCHOT ULTIMATUM

Chief Forester Did Not Demand the Scalp of Ballinger.

Washington, Nov. 17.—"The story that I have issued an ultimatum to the President, is like the recent conspiracy story, merely a silly fabrication. Of course I have done nothing of the kind, nor anything that could be twisted into that meaning. The President was good enough to express his satisfaction with my work, and I am going ahead with it."

Gifford Pinchot, the government's chief forester, in a statement issued today, thus disposed of the reports published this morning, that he had sent a letter to the President threatening ening to resign if Secretary of the Interior Ballinger remained in the cabinet.

MORE ARRESTS TO BE MADE IN THE SUGAR TRUST SCANDAL IN NEW YORK

Secretary Ballinger was one of the cabinet callers at the White House today and, when he left the executive offices, displayed his usual good humor in listening to many questions as to the so-called Ballinger-Pinchot feud. The secretary said he had merely taken up routine departmental matters with the president.

In a letter to the Aero Club of America, Mr. Brucker states that Dr. Gauss, president of the Automobile Club of Munich, is backing the enterprise and that a large dirigible balloon is being built. He suggests that the Aero Club of America offer a prize for the first aeronaut to make the trans-Atlantic trip. It is Mr. Brucker's plan to follow the course taken by Columbus.

The trans-Atlantic aircraft will carry three or four men, and will be equipped with life-boats and other safety devices. It will be followed by speedy gunboats or other craft.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

Airship Will Attempt the Voyage Within Six Months

New York, Nov. 17.—Joseph Brucker, whose project for crossing the Atlantic ocean in a dirigible balloon attracted some attention last spring, now makes the announcement from Berlin that the trial will be made within the next six months.

In a letter to the Aero Club of America, Mr. Brucker states that Dr. Gauss, president of the Automobile Club of Munich, is backing the enterprise and that a large dirigible balloon is being built. He suggests that the Aero Club of America offer a prize for the first aeronaut to make the trans-Atlantic trip. It is Mr. Brucker's plan to follow the course taken by Columbus.

HOPE DIAMOND AND ITS OWNERS LOST

London, Nov. 17.—According to the Paris correspondent of the Daily Express, Senor Hubib, a wealthy Spaniard, owner of the famous Hope diamond, was one of the passengers drowned on the French steamer La Seine, which was sunk in collision with the steamer Onda in the Rho straits. It is said he had the Hope diamond with him.

Dispatches from Paris on June 21, last, told of the sale there at auction of the Hope diamond collection. The famous Hope blue diamond was reported to have been disposed of to a French dealer of the name of Roseman by Habib for the sum of $50,000. The Express today says this sale subsequently was annulled.

Twenty-two Assistant Weighers Are Placed on the Undesirable List—Story of the Frauds Heard by President Taft

New York, Nov. 17.—Although no official confirmation could be had today, either from customs officials or from United States Attorney Vane, the report is persistent that indictments have been found against a number of government weighers whom Special Attorney General Stimson has connected with the American Sugar Refining company at its Williamsburg docks. A report from Washington that a list of twenty-two assistant weighers had been furnished to the United States civil service commission by the collector at New York of men implicated in the frauds in question was confirmed by Deputy Surveyor Richard Farr. Mr. Farr admitted that a list of "undesirables" had been prepared by him and forwarded to the secretary of the treasury. He intimated, however, this list was much longer than that referred to by the United States civil service commission, and that when the final "shake up" came a considerably greater number than twenty-two would be dropped.

The belief is becoming general that a congressional investigation of the New York custom house will be ordered. Colonel Edward S. Fowler, collector of the port, today declared himself in favor of such an investigation.

Deputy Surveyor Parr modified his earlier declaration that he had discovered fraud in the importation of sugar at Philadelphia by saying that possibly discrepancies could be ascribed to natural causes, such as shrinkage and moisture.

At the headquarters of the American Sugar Refining company, President W. B. Thomas issued a denial of a report that he intended to resign.

A report that A. H. Senff had resigned as director was also denied, it being explained that Mr. Senff had merely declined a reelection.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Secretary of the treasury MacVeagh called at the White House today and formally presented to the president the members of the new tariff commission or foreign tariff board, as it is sometimes called. These are James B. Reynolds, formerly assistant secretary of the treasury; Prof. H. C. Emery of Yale, who is chairman of the board, and Alvin H. Sanders of Chicago.

Secretary MacVeagh and the members of the board discussed with the President the work of his new board. Before leaving the conference, Mr. Reynolds took up with the President some details of the sugar trust. The tariff commission, he said, has charges against him by Assistant Surveyor Parr were concerned.

Mr. Reynolds explained briefly his connection with the case, as he has already outlined in a formal statement given out several days ago.

GIRLS SOLD FOR OPIUM

Natives of Philippines Are Bartering Off Their Children.

Manila, Nov. 16.—The natives of Sarangani, a group of islands to the south of Mindanao, are offering in barter young girls, each for one ounce of opium, according to W. S. Lyon, a horticulturalist who returned from a trip through the south coast of Mindanao. Mr. Lyon is engaged in obtaining specimens of graded fruits for the department of agriculture at Washington.

Mr. Lyon reports that this traffic in opium in south Mindanao, is carried on by way of Palm Island. The government cutters visit this district occasionally, but they are lacking in facilities to suppress the traffic.

PAPKE ONCE MORE AFTER KETCHEL

Kewanee, Ill., Nov. 17.—"I'll meet Stanley Ketchel for the light-heavyweight title if he wants a bout. He can't make the middle limit any more, and I claim I'm champion. But I'm ready to box for middleweight honors or the light-heavyweight title."

This was the expression of opinion made by Billy Papke when he heard that Stanley Ketchel had moved up another class and was now seeking light-heavyweight honors. Papke denies his right even to this position.

Papke has been training here for some time and is now in good shape. He says that he has not a quiver of extra weight on him, due principally to continued work in the open air. He has made road work and open air gymnastics a leading form of exercise since his return.

WILL WORK INJUSTICE

Corporation Tax Law is Severe on Real Estate Dealers.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 11.—A petition, addressed to Attorney General Geo. A. Wickersham, which already has been signed by sixty of the leading real estate dealers of the city, is being circulated here, asking that the corporation tax law be modified so as to eliminate certain features which it is claimed will work a great injustice to real estate dealers. One of the chief faults pointed out by the petition is that if the law is rigidly enforced it will work a great hardship on land companies selling on the installment plan in that it requires a one per cent tax on the year's collections less expenses, but does not provide for a proportionate deduction for the first cost of the land.

The petition also recites that the law will require a complete change in the auditing systems in many lines of business.

MERGER IS GROWING

The Telephone Combine May Absorb Postal Telegraph.

New York, Nov. 17.—The report of the controlling interest in the Western Union Telegraph company obtained by the American Telephone & Telegraph company would lead to a closer community of interest between those companies and the Postal Telegraph company, and probably an ultimate merger of the three companies was given more color today when officials of the American Telephone & Telegraph company frankly said that the Postal was the largest single stockholder in their company.

President Theodore N. Vail of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., in Boston today, it was said, conferring with other high officials of the company, and what the plans of the new combination in regard to the Postal's interest and other matters would be could not be learned in his absence.

There was a report current today that Special Assistant Attorneys General Ellis and Harrison had come to this city to investigate the merger of the American Telephone & Telegraph company with the Western Union. It is known that the government has, since May, 1908, been investigating the telephone and telegraph companies, in accordance with a resolution adopted by the United States senate.

Boston, Nov. 17.—"There is absolutely nothing in the story," was the comment of President Theodore N. Vail of the American Telephone & Telegraph company, when his attention was called to a report from New York that a merger of the Postal Telegraph company and the American Telephone & Telegraph company, might follow that of the telegraph company with the Western Union.

Referring to the report that the government prosecuting attorneys might investigate the merger of the Western Union with the telephone company, Mr. Vail remarked that his company had nothing to fear from such action.
